Giampaolo shirt factory was founded in 1988 by Stefano Giampaolo, Giamp Srl's Chief Executive Officer. Strong in business experience, inspired by entrepreneurial talent, driven by passion for good taste, Stefano Giampaolo makes a personal project based on creativity.

He decides, therefore, to give birth to a men's clothing product for excellence: the shirt.

A shirt designed for men who like to dress well, at work and in free time. A shirt that follows the tastes and needs of the customer, always attentive to the quality of the fabrics used.

All this has created a unique item that distinguishes it on the market and identifies it for what it really is: a product thought and studied.

COLLAR

Collars are hand-stitched by the most expert embroiderers: this is the most delicate part of the whole shirt, the one imparting a pleasant caress brushing lightly against the skin.

BUTTON

To sew on buttons we have reintroduced the age-old "mosca a zampa di gallina" (hen-foot) stitch, one of the features of traditional Neapolitan tailoring. A uniquely beautiful stitch, which only the most expert hands can produce.

"TRAVETTO"

This is the embroidery at the sleeve vent. We wanted this to be hand-stitched by our embroiderers, because it is one of the little expedients that are typical of our garments, and that make them truly unique.

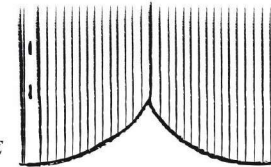

FOURTH SHOULDER

The adaptability of the shirt to the shoulder is another sensitive area that we wanted to address by hand-stitching, therefore eliminating the tightness created by machine sewing, and ensuring complete softness and a perfect fit.

ARM-HOLE

This is an area that can be too stiff in a machine-sewn shirt. Here, we have gone back to hand sewing, obtaining a truly exceptional soft result.

MOUCHE

The Mouche is that tiny, white, taffeta triangle connecting the back of the shirt to the front. In our shirts, this part is sewn exclusively by hand, in order to ensure greater strength.
